The following is the edited version of an exclusive interview which Surfing The Apocalypse conducted with Disclosure Project witness John Maynard, US Army Retired – Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA). It was conducted via email over a period of several weeks by Theresa de Veto for Surfing The Apocalypse (www.surfingtheapocalypse.com/maynard.html).

Surfing The Apocalypse is denoted as SURFING. John Maynard is denoted as MAYNARD. The views expressed here are not necessarily the views of Surfing The Apocalypse, the interviewer or any of the affiliated websites.

MAYNARD: One might ask, with a career that includes a background in counterintelligence for both military purposes and drug trafficking, "How did you become involved in UFOs?" My involvement was probably more happenstance than anything else. I became involved while overseas in Germany, Turkey and Korea. These areas were not noted for a lot of UFO activity. I was primarily afforded the opportunity to investigate peripherally a few incidents and implement disinformation or misinformation programs to divert attention away from the military and toward the paranormal and/or UFO [followers] in those areas. However, a point I never revealed to the military was that my grandmother brought me up believing that UFOs exist.

Regardless of that point, I was still a staunch conservative (politically) and placed my military duties ahead of my beliefs. I had a "country, duty and honour" type attitude. I believed that because of my dedication and what appeared to be naivety on my part, my military superiors did not question my actions when it came to debunking UFO sightings.

However, I became very intrigued as to why UFOs were not to become public knowledge and that they (the government) preferred that any UFO information for public consumption stay in the realm of the paranormal and/or the unreliable UFO resources. It took me several years to figure out that this blatant disregard for public opinion was a plan designed to keep and maintain the pressure of proof on certain elements of our society.

The plan was basically to place the burden of proof on the UFO researchers and to steer the public away from the military organisations that were directly involved in UFO research. In this plan, I deduced that the military was using the media to keep these UFO researchers from making too much of the issue by having the media brand them as kooks, weird, paranoid and unbelievable; better yet, by having people who go around chasing after shadows in a belief that UFOs are real and the government is hiding something.

To date, this plan has worked well above average, and the general public still has an opinion that follows whatever the media tell them.

SURFING: Can you tell me about the pivotal point at which you decided to move out of the realm of disinformation in the UFO field and into the belief that disclosure was needed? How did you come to the decision that your beliefs should take precedence over your military duties?

MAYNARD: If you want to pin it down to when it started to happen, I guess it was in the early 1970s while I was in Germany. It was also the time of the famous LA Times publishing of "The Pentagon Papers" and Daniel Ellsberg. I was in charge of a US/NATO classified repository, and The Pentagon Papers caused me to inventory everything in the repository, right down to the last page. Part of the Ellsberg papers was classified Top Secret Cosmic, which is a NATO classification. Since I was at an Air Defense site, that particular document was in my repository, so we had to account for everything. This caused my office an untold amount of work, inventorying all the documents. It was a page-by-page inventory. It was during that time that I realised just how much the government was hiding under its classification and disclosure blanket. Even newspaper reports that had become part of the file were being classified. It appeared to me that they literally did not want anyone to know what they knew. I guess curiosity got the best of me at that point.

After that incident, I started to pay serious attention to what was going on, particularly when it came to the classification of documents. I, more or less, became an official source to ask about classifying documents, which meant full research of the documents surrounding the one being classified.

They say that hindsight has 20/20 vision. I could have turned illegal at that point and made copies of the pages pertaining to UFO incidents. However, my security oath and duty to country stopped me from going that extra measure to the illegal.

The progression of this change in attitude and thoughts continued. While I was stationed in Turkey, I finally came to the conclusion that disclosure was needed. It took about six years to get to this point. It was also the time when I had become a Christian and was really having turmoil within myself as to which way to take a disclosure program and/or to finish my military career. I really had no means by which to accomplish this without literally going to jail. Call it providence or whatever, but upon leaving Turkey I was assigned to DIA headquarters in the Pentagon. At that point I realised that it might be best to wait and see what else I could learn about UFOs, what the government was doing with the information and why they considered UFOs a threat to public knowledge.

That day was probably the day I made up my mind that something had to be done, and that I was being afforded the opportunity to gain information that the public does not have, and probably will never have, without disclosure. Actually, I still have difficulty with stepping out and telling what I know, but I also firmly believe that it is the time for disclosure. Full disclosure!

SURFING: What exactly do you mean when you say "full disclosure"?

MAYNARD: Exactly what it means! I feel that the government should come clean and release all the information and let the American people decide what should be done with it. Surprisingly enough, or contrary to studies done by the military and other government agencies, I believe that American citizens and the world population as a whole are ready for this kind of disclosure. It has been far too long in coming. Even at that, I doubt that the government will release everything at one time. Just a simple disclosure that UFOs exist and contact has been made with alien beings is feared by the government.

SURFING: Did you personally see any evidence in your work with the government that contact has been made? If so, can you tell us specifically what this "contact" entails?

MAYNARD: Personally, yes, as listed in the documents I was in charge of. I also knew several people who flew in and out of Nellis AFB on the Janet flights out of Las Vegas McCarran International Airport. These were government-chartered flights (unmarked) from McCarran directly to Nellis/Area 51.

SURFING: Can you tell us about the most convincing evidence you have encountered?

MAYNARD: Not any one thing was most compelling except for, at the time, classified satellite photos and radar imagery taken during different compartmental photographic missions, such as Talent Keyhole (TK11) and by the Omni satellites. I am sure they are still classified.

As for what this information means to The Disclosure Project, it is multi-faceted. Firstly, it provides substantiation that documents do exist, as I can identify the kind and classification of them. Secondly, it provides backup documentation to other witnesses. Lastly, it establishes a basis for congressional hearings, if nothing else, to clear the problems with congressional apathy.

SURFING: Many theories have been put forth in regard to UFOs; they have been called everything from extraterrestrial to multidimensional, to government black-ops projects, to demonic entities. From your research and knowledge, of what do you believe the UFO phenomenon consists?

MAYNARD: A very loaded question, to say the least! I guess I would have to answer "D, all of the above"! Information and evidence became available to our government, mainly in the black-ops area, as you call it, which is basically covert intelligence or operations under deep cover and compartmentalisation. The information the government accumulated gave credence and support to all of the theories: UFOs, extraterrestrials, multidimensional travel and, for those in the religious movement, what can be referred to as "demonic".

Let me put it this way: we live in a very settled but dynamic universe; it is ever-changing, yet it continues steadily in the same direction. We are not to be "the masters of this universe", nor are any of its inhabitants that are known to exist therein. However, I have a problem with this word "phenomenon", particularly as it relates to sightings and encounters that are a matter of fact.

Labelling these events as a "phenomenon" is suppression of the event by a very refined disinformation program that is in place, which is automatically mimicked, i.e., "reported", by the media. This serves in keeping the subject of UFOs in the realm of fantasy or "phenomenon" as reported.

SURFING: A persistent legend in regard to flying saucers is that at the end of World War II, after Germany had been defeated, a select group of Nazi military personnel and scientists escaped capture from the Allied troops and established a secret base in Antarctica, where they continued to develop advanced aircraft that may have been based on extraterrestrial technologies.

MAYNARD: To answer your question: I have heard the story of the German escape to Antarctica, of spaceships being built and subsequent bases on the Moon. However, I have never seen anything in writing or heard it mentioned in any conversation I had regarding documents. If there were any truth to it, it was beyond my area of classification and responsibility.

SURFING: From your knowledge, have you seen anything that would make you believe that any of the UFO sightings are/were craft of this nature?

MAYNARD: No, although I did read certain documents that indicated our own abilities in this area: back-engineered equipment, propulsion systems and alien vehicles that could provide us with the capability of travelling great distances from this planet. I have also had recent conversations in this area, but I am not prepared to go into this in detail at this time. I need to make further inquiries and confirm this information from alternate sources before making a complete statement on these government activities.

"Just a simple disclosure that UFOs exist and contact has been made with alien beings is feared by the government."

SURFING: Do you fear that you might be reprimanded for bringing any of this evidence out now?

MAYNARD: No! And yes! However, I think I am at a position in life where I am comfortable in either case. Also, that my knowledge, along with the other witnesses all speaking the same language, gives me comfort. For the government to bring reprisals upon one, or all, would be more damaging in the case of rebuttal.

SURFING: Do you believe that the US Government has had active ongoing communications with alien species from beyond this Earth?

MAYNARD: Yes! There is no doubt in my mind that this is occurring.

SURFING: Can you tell us from where these extraterrestrials originate?

MAYNARD: Where do they come from? That is probably the $64 million dollar question for everyone, except certain government offices. Personally, I do not know, as I have never read about or conversed with one of them to find out. I have heard all the rhetoric that has been spouted about Greys from Alpha Centauri or Sirius, Reptilians (which I had never heard of before seeing the term used on the Internet), and then, of course, the term of "Nordic-looking aliens". Therefore, I do not believe that I can provide any insight into this question. However, this does not mean that I lack knowledge of their existence, albeit only Greys. I have never read anything on any other species.

SURFING: Are you saying that in your work with the US intelligence community you have seen evidence that the "Greys" are actual extraterrestrial biological entities?

MAYNARD: EBEs, I do not know what else to call them—do you? They are not from this planet, but their interaction with the main populace of this planet has been very limited by government actions.

SURFING: How has interaction with the Greys been limited by government actions?

MAYNARD: "Limited" is probably too gentle of a word for what is happening. The government is trying to directly control all contact between the Greys and the populace. This is one of the reasons for the hostilities spoken of between them, and why we may hear from the Greys long before the government wants disclosure.

SURFING: What do you know, if anything, regarding the motivations behind the visitors to our Earth?

MAYNARD: I can speculate like everyone else, yet some of this information was way beyond what my clearance was allowed to read. I do know that some of that motivation has to do with our growth, not only as a species but also as a future member of an interplanetary social community that has already achieved a place in a greater universal society. How fast we get there and what our importance will be to that community depends on many factors. At present, our government is controlling this aspect of our knowledge and until that has changed there will never be a true relationship. I firmly believe that if our government and other governments that have full knowledge of this contact do not come forward and make the announcement to the world, then the aliens will do it themselves, which most certainly will cause some panic.

SURFING: How long do you believe our government has had the knowledge that we are not alone in the Universe?

MAYNARD: That is hard to say, but I believe the United States Government—but not necessarily the elected government—had some knowledge of an alien presence as early as the mid-1800s. However, as to when official contact was made, I have never seen anything in writing on a specific date—although, through the tracking of rumours, other stated information and conversations I have had, I would estimate that official contact was made in the early to mid-1930s. Yet it could have been as early as pre-WWI (1910–14), which is long before today's popular belief of the 1950s.

Therein, because of the limited (congressional and executive branch) knowledge, the government as a whole was not prepared for the UFO crashes that occurred in the late 1940s and early 1950s. Because of this, the government stumbled dramatically, giving rise to speculation and conspiracy theories. However, with the speed of today's communications, the conspiracy advocates have a tendency to provide far more information on the event than actually occurred. Therefore, society is left with the feeling of being off balance because of who does and does not have knowledge of extraterrestrial life.

SURFING: You state, "I firmly believe that if our government and other governments that have full knowledge of this contact do not come forward and make the announcement to the world, then

I believe the United States Government—but not necessarily the elected government—had some knowledge of an alien presence as early as the mid-1800s.

the aliens will do it themselves."

MAYNARD: Yes, I firmly believe this, and have believed it for at least the last 20 years.

SURFING: If contact has been ongoing for as long as you believe that it has, why the sense of urgency from the alien standpoint to make this announcement now?

MAYNARD: I came to the conclusion that something was not quite right between the aliens and the people who were in contact with them. Not so much that it was stated outright, but just something that was said while I was doing background checks on cross-referenced documents. Also, in statements made during conversations with several fellow workers and my friends who worked at Area 51, it became obvious that all was not right at Groom Lake. Furthermore, other discreet conversations had indications that there was a confrontation going on between higher authority and those that had daily contact with the aliens.

However, I never learned exactly what the problems were. All I could grasp from the conversations was that there definitely was a confrontation of some kind. I have continued my research on this and believe that it is still going on today, but in a more heated sense, such as armed belligerence on both sides, with a much smaller alien presence.

SURFING: When you say "higher authority", do you mean persons higher up in the chain of command?

MAYNARD: I am referring to the chain of command. Yes!

SURFING: You state that "other discreet conversations had indications that there was a confrontation going on between higher authority and those that had daily contact with the aliens". Can you tell us anything about what the nature of this "daily contact" entails?

MAYNARD: There are certain government installations (military and/or civilian) where daily UFO and alien contact was, and is, a normal event of the day. They are: Groom Lake (Area 51) in Nevada; Dugway Proving Grounds in Utah; Cheyenne Mountain (Space Command) in Colorado; White Mountain in Arizona.

Places where it was not a normal daily activity were: California—Lawrence Livermore Laboratories, El Toro and China Lake Naval Air Stations and Edwards Air Force Base; New Mexico—Sandia Base and Los Alamos Laboratories; Florida—Eglin, MacDill and Maxwell AF Bases, which also supported the Space Centers at Canaveral and Kennedy; Maine—Loring AFB.

There were other places that had some activity which are of lesser importance and would cloud the issue.

SURFING: Please, tell us more about what you know about the daily events at Cheyenne Mountain.

MAYNARD: First off, I want you to understand a little of the background of Cheyenne Mountain which will give the reader an image of what we are talking about as it concerns daily contact.

Long before there was an organisation called Space Command, there was the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD), set up to protect the North American continent from attack. This was the main reason for building the complex in Cheyenne Mountain. The main purpose of this joint US/Canadian organisation was to support the Strategic Air Command (SAC) and the missile Air Defense Program.

As time progressed, satellite surveillance was incorporated in the command structure of a little-known organisation called the National Reconnaissance Office (NRO). The NRO is basically a black ops-type organisation that has kept its main role in SAC as a basic cover for the new command. It was the task of the NRO to obtain information through Ariel and/or satellite imagery. As more and more space activity became involved in the process, another command was developed to handle this alone; this is called the Space Command.

It is the Space Command's responsibility to maintain an uninterrupted and consistent data flow of daily activities in Earth and near space and of space vehicles entering our atmosphere. This Command is supported by all military organisations jointly, as well as NASA and several companies from the military-industrial complex, such as Hughes, EG&G and Dryden, and SAC.

All of these organisations provide budget, manpower and support activities and it is a shared process to some degree, whereas the NRO is basically an Air Force-run operation supported by all of the military commands. All three organisations, NORAD, NRO and the Space Command, are mission-supported directly by the NSA [National Security Agency], and in turn supply processed information to the NSA.

The Space Command acts like an air traffic controller for all the activity involved in and around North America. I have been working on getting information to substantiate my allegations surrounding the daily contact.

Over the past few years there have been incidents reported or alleged that would indicate a daily UFO and/or EBE contact. Although these incidents are, at most, suspect, there seemed to be too many factors unrelated in each incident that struck a familiar chord. After thoroughly examining each of the incidents (which I do not feel comfortable naming at this time), and in the course of my cursory investigation of the incidents, I noted similarities and patterns of disinformation being used that would make people scoff at what was stated. After applying my knowledge of disinformation, I began to see the truth in each of the incidents. This caused me to intensify my own investigation, which is ongoing at this time and involves more than just the Cheyenne Mountain complex. I hope to have a document ready to publish with the results of what I have found, later this fall or winter.

SURFING: Many people have reported abduction experiences. They describe being taken against their will by aliens—usually described as the Greys—and subjected to some sort of medical examination. Some of these abductees have also witnessed US military personnel present during the abduction experiences. What do you know about the abduction element in all of this?

"There are certain government installations (military and/or civilian) where daily UFO and alien contact was, and is, a normal event of the day."

MAYNARD: I was never exposed to any direct information on abductions. I knew that there were cases being investigated, but I never saw any reports. On a personal note, I would have to say that abductions have occurred and still are occurring today. Other than that, I do not believe I can offer anything further on this matter.

SURFING: Why do you think the aliens decided to interact with the government, rather than directly with the people?

MAYNARD: Over the years many statements have been written (fiction and/or nonfiction) concerning the best approach to this delicate subject, and I tend to agree with many of those statements. It is apparent that our species has been controlled to the large part by the government and media; whereas the Star Trek "Prime Directive" is probably the most famous statement, and most agree it could be the most likely scenario. However, as beings being observed for at least the last several thousand years, give or take a millennium, it will probably be less of a surprise to us in this day and age than previously thought; "Details at 11".

Yet, the factors with which we govern ourselves do not exactly bring out the best part of us. Therefore, if I were an alien studying this planet and its societies, I might be a little apprehensive about charging into the open and announcing my presence. I would probably contact one, two or more of the major governments and work with them, and, when the time was right, make a joint announcement and let history take its course. Still, regardless of what one might say, once governmental contact was made and working arrangements had been ongoing, any announcement might not be timely and might also be unproductive—that is, until it is apparent that disclosure is necessary. In these instances, the amount of the populace's knowledge is a big factor in determining the proper time to make the announcement.

The other side of that coin might be that contact was made millennia ago, and through design it was decided that an alien presence would be counterproductive to our planetary society growth. In that case, nondisclosure might be the best scenario.

Then again, if the contact had a positive reception and disclosure had been made, interaction might be a common factor in our society and would no more be thought of than what you think of your neighbour. Some believe, as well—as I do—that we might have had an even better planetary society had acknowledgement of contact occurred positively and openly from the beginning. Primarily, you have to remember that contact is a two-way street; both parties have to be in agreement with the action to achieve the best results.

SURFING: That perhaps the aliens have not revealed themselves directly to us so as not to affect our natural course?

MAYNARD: Truthfully, I am not sure if our government—or the aliens—are the cause for the nondisclosure at this point, although personally I feel that the former is the stronger possibility. I firmly believe that if it were up to the aliens, disclosure would have been made long ago. Why else would there be so many open sightings, personal information from people all over the world and near-encounters with aliens? Also, why would the government work so hard at denying it?

SURFING: Regarding these highly classified projects that you speak of involving US corporations: according to your research, were these corporations involved in "defensive" measures against the so-called "alien threat", backward engineering of captured or shared alien technologies, or all of the above and more? What can you tell us?

MAYNARD: The Department of Defense has had an ongoing program since the mid-1950s, which provided contracts to US civilian contractors/organisations/corporations that worked in the intelligence community. These projects came under very tight security and usually were very highly compartmentalised. What this means is that you have several concentric circles: the closer you are to the inner circle, the more information you can find on the project; the further you get away from this inner circle, the less information is available. All this is established on a very strict need-to-know basis. Within these circles you could, if you looked hard enough, find contractors that worked on various parts of the project but really had no idea what the overall project was. This also happened with the military's interaction with the primary contractor. Also in this respect, each military branch had certain projects that came under the compartmentalisation security measures.

What is meant by this compartmentalisation is simply the classification of a document or project, whether it is classified as Confidential, Secret or Top Secret. However, when they are named such as Umbra (UM), Majestic (MJ), Omni (OM), or Talent Keyhole (TK), the compartmented program becomes an entity unto itself. The projects and the circle of knowledge draw very tight toward the centre and access is granted or denied from within that circle. Therefore, you can literally talk with a top official in the Pentagon but, unless he has the authorisation for that particular project, he probably does not know that it exists. If he does know it exists, he knows nothing about it. Knowing the simple rules of classification helps in identifying the right person to talk with.

SURFING: One of the planks in The Disclosure Project platform is "To enact legislation which will ban all space-based weapons". Do you believe projects like the planned US anti-missile defence program are somehow related to the extraterrestrials?

MAYNARD: My political view on this is, since we cannot get along with anyone on this planet, that we justify our choice of weapons with which to defend ourselves. My ideological view is that we should ban all of our weapons, throw out our monetary systems, return to a bartering system and live in harmony with each other. Science should be shared with everyone, not just the privileged.

SURFING: But do you believe that some of these space-based weapons are actually being designed to do battle with extraterrestrials? If so, what effect will building them have on our "relationship" with the aliens?

MAYNARD: Does anyone know? We officially have not been told that our government or any other government is in contact with aliens. So how can we have a relationship? One can only speculate at this point. I firmly believe that we still have a basic fear of ourselves, thus anything alien is a basic fear for all humans. Those in power play on this point to maintain their need to have weapons for self-defence, be it singular or mass destruction. As you know, we have two sides to every coin and you walk on one side at a time. Then there are those that walk on the edge between both sides. The problem comes to us as: where do you want to stand? This is something each of us has to ask ourselves at one point or another.

"Therefore, you can literally talk with a top official in the Pentagon but, unless he has the authorisation for that particular project, he probably does not know that it exists."

SURFING: What do you think is the reasoning behind the government secrecy and not wanting to share knowledge of an extraterrestrial interaction with Earth?

MAYNARD: Not a simple question to answer and we seem to be walking all around this question. I have had this question asked before and have thought about it for some time, at least for the past 35 years. Yet any answer I come up with does not really say it all.

Two of the top theories as I see it are "greed" and "secret government" theories. If you look at greed within the government (the old master and slave routine) as one possibility, it comes out with a very strong case. Then, of course, you have the secret government concept: not as strong as greed, but a very good contender in many circles. However, the all-time theory, I believe, is power—total and complete, unchecked power—which is a combination of greed and secrecy. This is what I believe has kept this covered up for so long and will continue to keep parts of it hidden, never to be released.

Therein, I think that The Disclosure Project has the right idea: simply disclose that UFOs and aliens exist. The rest will come later as Congress gets into the act and really finds out what the military has been up to for the past 40, 60 or more years. Even at that, there will be certain aspects that will be held very tightly and will never see the light of day as far as the average American citizen is concerned, and—in all due respect to its power—Congress also.

SURFING: In your opinion, what effect would full disclosure have on our social, religious and political organisations?

MAYNARD: Let me take each one of these aspects of our lives in reverse order.

Political life and organisations: When it comes to UFOs and alien contact, in our current system at least 98 per cent of our elected officials are as much in the dark as the rest of our citizens. It is also a simple fact that our elected officials are so greedy that they have not been able to look beyond that greed to what has been happening in our country, but I should add that this is not all-inclusive. As for world organisations, primarily within the leadership, such as the UN and industrial nations, their current level of knowledge probably goes beyond what the American populace is aware of, yet it is still shrouded in secrecy to the nth degree.

Religious organisations: For the most part, the majority will be totally and utterly devastated and receive a blow to their theology. Yet, there will be a full element within the religious community that will take this in stride and will not be shaken by the announcement. It will be that element that leads the way to a greater understanding of the scriptures and the theology of a one-God concept.

Social aspects: This is probably the most difficult to predict or provide an assessment for. I would have to say that, as a whole, the social aspects of an alien presence will have a dramatic effect at first, which is a given fact...

Concluding Remarks:

MAYNARD: One quick note regarding weapons in space: I have two simple statements. Firstly, I believe and pray that all weapons in space will be banned. Secondly, I am also practical in understanding that where there are humans there will always be a weapon of some kind involved.

Reflecting on what has been said in this and other interviews makes me even more determined to see The Disclosure Project through, no matter what the consequences might be. We must be making some big progress because the "masters of disinformation" personalities are stepping up to their microphones and trying to make it sound like we are a bunch of crackpots.

So what do you believe? I know what I believe! I believe in what Dr Greer has started, how he has pulled the people and resources together to present a powerful message to the American people, and to ask for disclosure by our government—a message that has been denied by our government for far too many years.

In this regard, I do not believe that it any longer matters that the government has not disclosed the fact that UFOs and extraterrestrials have visited Earth on a regular basis. What matters is that the government finally stop playing its denial role and tell the truth. Yes, the truth that we have been visited repeatedly by non-Earth entities who fly in and out of our space in craft that have been sighted and photographed for many years by people just like you.

It is time that our government bring this knowledge to full disclosure, not only to the American people but also to the world as a whole, allowing other governments to follow in this brave new unfolding of our history.

I also believe that once a full disclosure has been achieved, all of the world's population will realise that we can achieve world peace, without weapons, through the technology and assistance from our galactic neighbours. It is my hope that the people of Earth will force their governments to seek this peace—World Peace. I have heard that phrase so often that I never thought we had a hope or glimmer that it could really be possible, but it is. It is a matter of making people understand, no matter who they are, that the only solution for a more tolerant peace in our own world is to maintain peace beyond our worldly confines.

It boils down to this: Disclosure first; peace second; and no weapons in space, third! A beautiful way to really get the new millennium rolling.
